

ONE-DAY INTERNATIONAL WEBINAR

ON

Pedagogy through the Looking Glass: Challenges and Opportunities

A PANEL DISCUSSION

ABOUT THE WEBINAR

The COVID-19 has affected educational activities across the world. As almost all educational institutions remain closed, most of the students/learners are suffering because of this pandemic situation. All the academic activities are at stake. Countries are compelled either to defer the sessions or close the ensuing sessions. All the stake holders are experiencing tremendous psychological trauma. The present crisis has precipitated many challenges for educational institutions to provide secure uninterrupted high quality online education. This pandemic gradually encroaches the space for formal 'chalk and talk' methods of educational institutions, instead inviting use of technological tools to impart training and teaching. Online non-contact mode of teaching finds much safer place rather than offline contact mode, academics resilient by force not by choice. Persistent 'digital divide' across nation magnifying the divide in academic sector also, is limiting the scope of education for the fortunate only, hampering the very spirit 'education for all'.

At this juncture the webinar will try to address the problems relating to academics and find out underlying potentials embedded within digital teaching-learning options.
